SUBJECT 9191 – NOVEMBER 2009 REPORT

PAPER 3

GENERAL COMMENTS

Some high standards were realised by some of the candidates who managed to produce well researched work which was reflected through original and individualised techniques. Such candidates demonstrated an ability to investigate, analyse and develop the themes presented to them. There was evidence of stimulating preparation with an increased awareness of what is happening around them in society as well as a lot of fictitious but effective interpretations were so effective that they really created the required mood.

The candidates who did poorly mainly reflected lack of preparation and commitment to their work.
